DECEMBER 1: “HONORING THE FALLEN”

◆ December 1: Colonel Lee Lange will present Honoring the Fallen. One of the most important and least known duties in the Marine Corps, and in all the other US military branches, is the Casualty Assistance Call Officer. Headquarters Marine Corps utilizes a nationwide network to identify Marine officers and senior enlisted members for this duty. Once assigned, these Marines’ primary duty is to notify the next of kin of fallen Marines. Once notification is made, these Marines are responsible for follow-up visits to explain military benefits and to provide military honors if requested by the family. These assignments are some of the most difficult in the Marine Corps. Every Marine in this duty understands this is the very least they can do to honor the service of fallen Marines and help families deal with the loss of their loved one. Honoring the Fallen explains this process and why it is so important to those serving and their families.
